“ Don and I were best friend growing up. We played together got a job at a local theater and worked there several years before we turned 16 then we went to work in the textile mill. This was done while going to school. We were always together. We always had one of our Dad's car on week ends looking for a date. We found the love of our life one week end. About one year latter we married the ladies and settle down and raised families. Our wives were first cousin. Even tho we went seprate ways for work I still thought of the good times we had together.

I was sorry hear about Don's passing. I will never forget him. My prayers are with you.

*The death of our loved ones brings heart ache and much pain
when they know the Lord
our loss is their gain.*

“ Always singing Cindy Lou. Or She be coming around the mountain. My first trip to North Carolina and how he took the scenic route. It took forever and it was hot! No AC back then. I still love The Carolinas. Thanks for some fun memories.

“ There's a car on the road riding, that never runs out of gas. It never breaks down. It has a beautiful dark haired smiling woman as a passenger, and it's warm outside. There's a cold drink in the console, Hank Williams playing on the radio, and a warm breeze in the air. It's Don driving, without a care in the world. He's happy, he's content. He's got his Sam-dog (ham bone) in the back seat, some bits-O-honey candy in his pocket. He's wearing his sunglasses, and heading to the beach. He's laughing on the beach with Lorene, and he's watching the grand kids in the ocean. He's headed to the mountains now, to help Jay with the heaters, work on the units till Sundown. He is headed to Taco Bell this afternoon, and maybe Chinese for later. He's got his whole eternity in front and ahead, no worries, no hurt. There's no pain in this Heaven, no problems drinking a DrPepper, and he can hear me just fine. I don't need to raise my voice to hear "lousy" cause he doesn't use that anymore. It's been replaced with a genuine smile and a response of "couldn't be finer than frogs hair". He's watching Barney on Andy Griffin, working on painting his wood. He's got a lot to plant in the yard outback, and lights to line the house for Christmas. He heads to church every Sunday now, you see it's still full indeed. He's got his sister and his parents, his brother too. He's been wanting to see them for so long he relaxes in the pew. It's time for prayer in service now, and he prays for me and you. See it's us that still have a ways to go, working and hurting still. We have yet to see and feel what's on the other side and he bows his head and knows, one day we will all be together again. One day the worries behind us, sin no longer around. One day will be upon us, eventually we will see. Until then may we be grateful for the life he held, the life we have, the love we shared.
