“ Jeff was my best friend starting in kindergarten. Many years of playing baseball in the spare lot, fishing in the creek, crawling in the sewers. Too much to mention. In high school playing football and double dating. He invented “the big six”, always creative and wise beyond his yrs. Our friendship endured until he moved to North Carolina. We only had a handful of get togethers. In my memory, and in thoughts today, he remains my best friend. No one came along to replace him. It’s been 70 years. In the yrs growing up we share everything, our success and our losses. We were always there for each other. I love you my friend.

Dave, Very nice and I appreciate you sharing such wonderful memories of a great friend. Even though we live in NC, we only saw Jeff 2 times here over the years. You were all a major part of our special time at Rittman and RHS in our class of '66. And of course the "Big Six" made growing up in RHS even more precious. BDR
